Introduction

This document contains the brand style guide, developed to ensure a consistent and cohesive brand presence across every touchpoint. By following these guidelines, PointzPlus maintains a recognizable identity across all mediums, strengthening usability, trust, and long-term brand recognition.

The following pages define the essential elements of the PointzPlus identity, from logo and color system to typography and supporting brand assets, helping to connect effortlessly with the audience through a consistent design language.

Logo

The logo represents the brand's seamless rewards ecosystem.

The logo is the primary identifier for the brand. The brand identity is made up of two elements:

- Icon
- Wordmark

A unified and secure circular value ecosystem.

Spark symbolizes points & rewards, while the intersecting line references a credit card.

An abstract representation of the letter P.

Logo Usage

- A. The logo should primarily be used with icon locked up with the wordmark vertically.
- B. Instances when the icon be used in isolation:
 - favicons and profile images for social media
 - With presence of wordmark in layout
 - Footer details
- C. Horizontal locked-up identity to be used only in spaces where the vertical space is limited.
- D. Restricted use- can be used to place overlayed on an image, use black and white option for this variant when color is not an option.

Logo Usage

The P+ variant is monogram mark to be used under special restrictions.

Logo Spacing

Maintain a clear space of x around the logo, where x is width of the icon. For the wordmark-only variant, keep the space around logo equal to 1/4th of its length.

The clear space around the logo prevents the identity from appearing too close to other design elements, therefore, protecting the integrity and legibility of branding at all times. This ensures the logo remains prominent and uncluttered. No text, imagery or other element should encroach upon this clear space.

PointzPlus

Do’s and Dont’s

Always use approved master artwork. Never alter or recreate the brand identity.

Legibility of the brand identity should be prioritized. Check size for readability of logo in terms of elements present in design.

PointzPlus

Do not alter the colors of the logo.

PointzPlus

Never change the proportion of the brand identity. Do not stretch, compress, or distort the logo.

Do not place the logo on a color which compromises the legibility.

PointzPlus

Maintain the spaces between the logo design.

PointzPlus

Do not add effects, shadows, or outlines.

Colors

The brand colors define the PointzPlus personality.

The brand's core palette consists of two defining primary colors and one dominant secondary color. The supporting secondary colors complement the brand palette. Combined with functional colors for limited and utility use, a distinct style is created which is both simple to use and powerful in its simplicity.

Only use the following color values in branded materials.

Color Usage

The primary palette is used across key brand touchpoints and communications to build strong brand recognition through consistent use of the core colors.

The dominant secondary color supports the primary palette, adding variety and visual depth while maintaining a cohesive identity.

Supporting secondary colors are used selectively to add emphasis and enhance visual hierarchy.

Designs should be led by the primary palette, supported by the secondary colors, with text and interface elements styled using the functional colors.

Colors are to be used within their intended use. Refer to this document as guideline.

Pixel Blue

Primary brand color used across all major brand communications, digital interfaces, and key touchpoints.

Purple

Primary brand color used to reinforce the brand's premium identity across key communications & brand assets.

Cyan

Highlight key information, add visual emphasis, and introduce energy throughout the composition.

Light Blue

Used as supporting backgrounds, panels, sections, and subtle graphic elements to complement core palette.

Lilac

Indicate credited amounts, successful transactions, & positive financial states. Primarily in text or subtle visual elements.

Highlight reward points, point values, and point-related elements.

Call-to-action elements

Body text against light backgrounds.

Body text against dark backgrounds.

Gradients

Gradients can be used to enhance the visual appeal of designs. They should consist of two colors, primarily from the primary palette and the dominant secondary color.

Alternatively, gradients may combine one color from the primary or dominant secondary palette with a supporting secondary or functional color, where appropriate.

Angled gradients are encouraged to reflect the color style of brand's logo. One of the shades should originate from the edge of the composition or background.

Design Element

Inspired by the spark and line within the PointzPlus logo, this signature brand element serves as a distinctive asset that unifies communications across presentations, digital interfaces, and marketing materials.

Select the appropriate variation to maintain visibility and contrast across backgrounds.

The spark should be positioned near either end of the design element, approximately within the outer third, while the line may be extended in either direction to cover the design.

It can feature gradients using the primary palette or the dominant secondary color.
